

Wheaton College Sexual and Gender-based Misconduct Resources:

Get to a safe place immediately.

Where is my support?

If you have been sexually assaulted, it is not your fault.

Systems are in place to support students dealing with situations involving sexual and gender-based misconduct.

Learn who to reach out to:

I need help...

- ◆ Because I can't finish my assignments
- ◆ Because I missed class or an exam
- ◆ Because I am experiencing retaliation
  - ◆ Finding a different room to live in
  - ◆ Feeling safe in around campus

You don't have to navigate any of these situations on your own. Support is available to you to help with any or all of these services (and any other support measures you may need).

I don't know if I want to report what happened...

It's okay to take your time to process and make a decision. There is no deadline for reporting a violation of the sexual and gender-based misconduct policy.

In the majority of cases, you can have conversations about what happened, what options are available, and what you are considering with different staff and administrators without beginning a formal conduct complaint process.

Who can I talk to?

Many people on campus are trained to help including RAs, ACs, the SMART Coordinator, and many faculty and staff.

Wheaton takes these issues misconduct seriously, and doesn't want the fear of reporting or retaliation to be a barrier for getting help.

If you need help but don't know where to start your AC, the Director of Title IX Compliance, or SMART Coordinator are great first contacts.
