The Honorary Degrees

Kirk D. Kolenbrander Honorary Doctor of Science

Marian Wright Edelman observed that “Education is for improving the lives of others and for leaving your community and world better than you found it.” Kirk Kolenbrander, you live that credo. As a teacher and a higher education leader, your insight and wisdom have guided individuals and institutions to grow toward their fullest potential.

After earning a Ph.D. in physical chemistry, you began teaching as an assistant professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Your concern for student growth and wellbeing prompted you to look beyond the classroom to promote the integration of living and learning. That focus led to the establishment of a long-running leadership program organized around community-centered problem solving.

Your commitment to students earned you honors, including the MIT Baker Award for Faculty Excellence and the MIT Smith Award for Outstanding Faculty Contributions to Student Life. It also led to your decades-long leadership at the Institute as an administrator, serving as senior advisor to three MIT presidents. Today, you continue to guide aspiring scientists and engineers as a senior lecturer.

MIT is not the only institution to benefit from your expertise and care. You served a term as dean of engineering at Southern New Hampshire University, helping to grow its engineering programs. And here at Wheaton, you shared your expertise in higher education management and your insights on teaching and learning during 15 years on the Board of Trustees, including your tenure as vice-chair of the Board.

We know firsthand the impact of your wise leadership and insightful approach to teaching and learning, in and beyond the classroom, and we are profoundly appreciative for the generosity with which you share these gifts. It is our great pleasure to present you, Kirk Kolenbrander, with this honorary Doctor of Science.

Toshiko Mori

Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters

Great architecture creates spaces in which society can flourish and evolve. Through your practice and your teaching, you Toshiko Mori demonstrate architecture's capacity to address pressing global challenges and improve lives through thoughtful and innovative design.

Your firm's first project, for Comme des Garçons, reflected your interest in the intersection of economy and culture, and it encouraged your career-long exploration of textiles and weaving. Throughout your career, your focus on rigorous research, sustainable materials, community engagement, and appreciation for tradition and innovation has created extraordinary libraries, museums, workspaces and residences. Your projects in Senegal—Thread, an artists' residency and cultural center, and the Fass School and Teachers' Residences, both of which won the AIA Architecture Award—exemplify the quality of your work. In recognition Architectural Digest has featured you in its annual AD100 list since 2014 and named you to the AD100 Hall of Fame in 2023.

The influence of your thoughtful approach to design extends to a new generation through your work as an educator. Now the Robert P. Hubbard Professor in the Practice of Architecture at Harvard's Graduate School of Design, you served as the first woman to chair the university's Department of Architecture. The Topaz Medallion for Excellence in Architectural Education, awarded by the American Institute of Architects and the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture, testifies to your impact. You also contribute to learning as vice president of the American Academy of Arts and Letters and as a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

We are deeply grateful for your dedication to improving lives through design. It is our great pleasure to present you, Toshiko Mori, with this honorary Doctor of Humane Letters.

Amelia Roxanne Parnell

Honorary Doctor of Letters

Data can be a powerful force for enhancing lives, when it is gathered carefully, interpreted with empathy and applied with intelligence. That is a lesson that you bring to classrooms and campuses across the country, Amelia Parnell. By leveraging research to inform policy and guide practice, you show educators and policy makers the way to welcoming a broader cross-section of society into the classroom and to fostering higher levels of student success.

You began your career as an education policy analyst for the Florida Legislature, exploring a range of critical issues, from the intricacies of state tuition models to transfer student graduation rates. That experience was enriched by your tenure at the Association for Institutional Research where you gained insight into how institutions can and should collect data and apply it for student benefit.

At NASPA, you brought that expertise to supporting those who work directly with college students—administrators in student affairs. As vice president for research and policy, you secured more than $22 million in grant-funded research and you led national initiatives to enhance student success. And always you championed the use of data, exemplified by your book, You Are a Data Person: Strategies for Using Analytics on Campus.

Now, as the president of NASPA, you bring your belief in the power of data to improve students' educational experience at a time when questions about the value of education have never been more urgent.

Amelia Parnell, your focus on higher education as a tool for personal advancement and impact has been clear in your every role—from classroom educator and author to government analyst and industry leader. On behalf of all the educators and students touched by your dedication, we are proud to award you this honorary Doctor of Letters

Wheaton Anthem

A Song for the Sesquicentennial 1984

Words and music by Carlton T. Russell

We lift our voices, let them ring, With grateful gladness
We sing of those who cared to sow The plentiful harvest
We hear their story: strong and few, They worked and prayed and Living the dream and dreaming to share With men our founders'
So Wheaton's banner, raise it unfurled To women and men through-let us sing. Joining with others far and near, With that we know, Seeing above horizons then A planned a new Through many toils a dream to save; A vision rare, Risking the storm while charting anew, We out the world; To the oppressed of every race A old and young we gather here To celebrate the woman's life beyond their ken. They strove for freedom fuller life to us they gave. We sing their praises;

journey toward this brighter view As men and women, word of hope, a gift of grace. Not for ourselves our gift they gave, Our founders with their vision brave.

of the mind, A bright new world for woman-kind.
may we too Abundantly live in all we do.
equal, give Unique gifts of self that all may live.
blessings be, But all human-kind, 'til all are free.
